Mr Jones: The Bank Manager

Mr Jones is a lot of things to a lot of people; husband, father, friend, confidante, adviser – but bank manager is his preferred role. Keeping the balance sheet in check, having structure and order in his day-to-day work, commanding respect; these are the simple things that get Mr Jones out of bed each morning.

He relishes the satisfaction of helping those who have nowhere else to turn, but he isn't a pushover; firm but fair is what they always say. As a bank manager, he has the keenest of radars too; a blaggard can be identified even before the first handshake.

A tall, well-spoken, distinguished man, fiercely patriotic, with an air of authority about him. Yes, it is fair to say that Mr Jones is a stable kind of a chap, a real pillar of the community; a great British family man; an all round good-egg.

To learn more about the other side of Mr Jones, come back after dark....
